Valve Sacks and FFS (Form Fill and Seal) Film

Cliffe Packaging stocks and supplies a complete range of polythene and paper valve sacks. Valve sacks are perfect for a wide range of products such as plastic granules/powders, pigments, compounds and food stuffs.

Valve sacks have an opening or 'valve' in one corner through which the sacks are filled; once filled they are normally self-sealing. They can also be printed up to any combination of six colours.

LDPE FFS film is supplied to customers who have automated packing processes. Continuous flat film is delivered to the packing machine, which is then fed onto rollers. The machine then constructs the plastic bags whilst simultaneously filling with product, finally sealing the bag in one process.

Machine Stretch Film/Hand Stretch and Stretch Hood

Stretch film and pallet wrapping is an excellent, cost-effective way of securing goods onto a pallet. They also act as a barrier, preserving goods against dust, dirt or even rain water. Standard or pre-stretched machine film is normally supplied in reel widths of 400 or 500mm with thickness's ranging from 12 - 35 microns.

Hand stretch film is available in two main widths – 400 or 500mm, with thickness's ranging between 7 - 35 microns. The film is applied by hand; reels can be supplied with standard cores or for ease of use, extend cores.

Stretch Hood is supplied on a reel and comes as a tube of film sealed at one end. This is stretched over a palletised load to secure the contents of the pallet. This type of film is used in conjunction with a 'stretch hood machine' which automatically cuts the film to an appropriate length, and then seals film to form the pallet cover.
